The Center for Adaptive Rationality directed by Ralph Hertwig at the Max Planck Institute for Human Development is seeking applicants for a position as

Student Research Assistant

to assist the ongoing research in all phases of the scientific process, particularly in the development of online experiments. This position will be employed on a basis of 80h a month and last for 6 month or longer. The anticipated start date is March/April 2018, but is flexible.

Requirements
- Enrollment in a Bachelor’s or Master’s program at a German university
- Experience and affinity for web programming (JavaScript, HTML, PHP, CSS, etc...)
- High flexibility and commitment

Desired qualifications (not all are necessary to apply)
- Familiarity with programming games or other interactive online content
- Experience with running experiments with human participants

What we offer
The Center for Adaptive Rationality is investigating various aspects of judgment and decision-making. We offer you the chance to participate in an international and interdisciplinary research team. Research assistants will be involved in research using computational methods to study the cognitive, social and/or developmental basis for decision making. This will include programming up on-line experiments for a variety of different settings. The Max Planck Society is committed to employing more individuals with disabilities and especially encourages qualified individuals to apply. The Max Planck Society seeks to increase the number of women in those areas where they are underrepresented and therefore explicitly encourages women to apply.

Please submit your application including (a) a short motivation letter, (b) your CV, and (c) school and further certificates to the below email address. Please send all materials as a single .pdf document, with ‘RA 1802B’ in the email subject line. To ensure full consideration, please apply before March 15th, 2018. After that date, applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis until the position is filled.
